Aircraft leasing is a way to escape the mammoth cost involved in purchasing an aircraft. An aircraft lease is the transfer of an aircraft by the lessor (owner) to the lessee. The lessee will possess the aircraft without the legal title. There are two main types of aircraft leases, wet leasing and dry leasing. In dry leasing an aircraft financing entity (lessor), provides only the aircraft to the lesser, while wet leasing involves providing the aircraft with its crews, maintenance, insurance etc. Leasing option is very company specific depending on its specific needs and situation.
