

Famous alt-country Band The Apalachicola Sound Brings Forward Heartfelt Compositions

The imagination and creativity showed by alt-country band The Apalachicola Sound stands incomparable to any other music. Listen to these compositions on Spotify.

Miami, Dec 31, 1969 (IssueWire.com) - The famous alt-country band The Apalachicola Sound has launched their latest album 'Gritwater' to the audience and they can't stop obsessing over it. Though the album has a total of ten tracks four of them stood out the most among the public. The singer/songwriter George Maddox made this album come alive by taking themes and creating it based on real-life experiences. Four of the tracks 'Bring the 'Cane', 'Gritwater', 'Wettin' a line', and 'Cost' have southern rock, country and blues infused into them together.

While making the album the band The Apalachicola Sound modeled it after the famous recording studios in Alabama. The artist George Maddox has a lyric centered approach to songwriting that can hardly be seen these days. Each of the tracks has a storyline imbibed into it. 'Bring the 'Cane', 'Gritwater', 'Wettin' a line', and 'Cost', all have their own stories to tell. It is the powerful vocals of George Maddox that has brought tracks to life. It is the honesty of the tracks that have attracted the audience.

The Apalachicola Sound in 'Bring the 'Cane' has incorporated an energising beat and a magnetic country aura that will captivate all audiences. Compared to this 'Gritwater' is full of uplifting melody and hopeful ideas within its lyrics that are hard to ignore. 'Wettin' a line' has a brilliant soundscape that will imprison your attention from the very beginning. But it is 'Cost' that has gained worldwide appreciation from the public.
