

Rapper Wick is Recreating Groovy Hip-Hop with his Newest Track 'The Come Up'

The song 'The Come Up' from rapper HEVVI aka Wick's Extended Play 'Wick- The EmPath EP' with music producer Nightowl is creating the best variations of these times.

Indianapolis, Dec 31, 1969 (IssueWire.com) - Indiana rapper Wick is conceptualizing hip-hop in a new light. His newest EP 'Wick' is gradually garnering both commercial and critical popularity in the spectrum of hip-hop. His biggest accomplishment lies in perspectives of social and cultural change. Through his works, he wants to bring forward how everything under the sun is conceived, judged and adjudged by the invincible force of conglomerates. With time, he wants to attain the stature of the best interpretation of himself. 'The Come Up' subjugates and contradicts the various versions of change with an edge powerful enough to make the audience fall into a natural groove. His songs are a lyrical explosion of underground trap, rhythmic and lyrical intricacies. He is an independent artist sustaining his own creative flairs and looks forward to bring about substantial change in the way things are perceived through his music.

Indiana rapper Wick, as a commercial artist, may be fairly new but his musical deconstruction started at a tender age of 3. He has been a practicing percussionist ever-since and today, at 20, he is just a more refined version of himself. Speaking of his early influencers, Wick, is the biggest fan of JID; but his sound is completely different. With 'Wick- The EmPath EP', he is tasting a new flavor of success and popularity which is bound to grow into a global sensation. 'The Come Up' is made up of fragments of the best styles of underground trap, the enthusiastic vocal ability and the very essence of musical revelry. Although his new album in collaboration with Nighowl is in the rise on various music charts, he is already penning his new project. As a musician, he is definitely going to accomplish the unspoken layers of music as a revolutionary act in the years to come. Support his good work and listen to his new extended play by following him on his social handle on Instagram, Twitter, and Soundcloud.
