Get to know Geriatrics Physician Dr. Daphne Schneider, who serves the population around Cambridge, Massachusetts.

New York City, Mar 4, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - Board certified and fellowship trained Geriatric

Physician Dr. Schneider currently practices with Cambridge Health Alliance. Cambridge Health Alliance is a vibrant, innovative health system that serves everyone in need. It operates the nationally accredited Cambridge Public Health Department and community health programs across its service area. It collaborates closely with local governments and non-profits to improve health status and reduce barriers to care. As a teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School, Harvard School of Public Health, Harvard School of Dental Medicine and Tufts University School of Medicine, CHA is proud to train the health care providers of tomorrow.

Dr. Schneider graduated with her medical degree from Northwestern University School of Medicine in 1999 giving her two decades of experience in her field. After obtaining her medical degree she completed her Family Medicine residency at the Rush University Medical Center followed by a two-year Fellowship in Geriatrics at Cornell University's Weill School of Medicine.

Dr. Schneider is dual certified in Family Medicine and Geriatric Medicine by the American Board of Family Medicine. Her time is split between her office practice at Somerville Hospital Primary Care and her House Calls practice in which she cares for homebound frail elders.

Geriatrics is a specialty that focuses on medical issues and diseases of aging. A Geriatrician most often treats people over the age of 70 who are either healthy or have multiple medical issues. Medical care becomes more complex as people age and accumulates medical conditions. A Geriatrician is an expert in how these medical conditions impact one another, in how each medication interacts with the other and how both medical conditions and medications uniquely affect people as they age.
