Adelaide offered great tips to choose the perfect wedding dress according to your body type.

According to a study, about 1,20,000 people get married every year and a hundred thousand vital decisions, choosing the right wedding dress is one. Rapsimo, a renowned shop for wedding dresses in Adelaide recently shared tips for choosing the right wedding dress according to various body types.

Team Rapsimo says that there are five major styles that are popular. All of these styles are gorgeous; however, if you choose the right style that highlights your best assets and conceals the areas that you get more conscious of.

1. A-line or Princess-

The style is simple, straightforward and yet classy. It has been named after the shape it creates after wearing it. It fits around the bodice and flows out nicely to the ground. Team Rapsimo said, “A-line dress can be made of almost any fabric such as satin or silk. If you need something more dramatic in A-line, then you can go for the Princess cut version of it. It can be worn by almost any bride. The full-skirt of the A-line dress can hide your rounder lower body very effectively. The Princess version creates the slimming effect, so it can be worn by any bride who wants to look slimmer.”

2. Empire-

The Empire style dress also goes well on most of the body types. It is especially good for pear-shaped bodies. Ladies with larger breasts also prefer Empire style dress as it can cover them effectively. If you need a plus size wedding dress in Adelaide, then Rapsimo must be your pick.

3. Column/Sheath-

Having a narrow shape that flows straight down from top to bottom, the column dress is best suited for lean bodies. According to Team Rapsimo, brides who are petite can look taller than they are after wearing this dress. On the flipside, this dress can sometimes be tight and might restrict your movement on the dance floor.

4. Ball Gown-

Ideal for big traditional weddings, this dress is dramatic and timeless. It is dress that suits almost all brides, but it is ideal for pear-shaped or slender brides. Since this cut accentuates the waist-line, it can create an hour-glass look. It can also be paired with a pair of gloves and a train for even more dramatic effect.

5. Mermaid-

This fabulous style accentuates women curves nicely and it comes in a variety of versions such as halter, strapless, trumpet flare and flamenco. Perfectly suited for women who have nice curves can carry this cut very well.
