

Ian Cioffi saved a life with the fire department

New York City, Aug 2, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - A 35 years old - Volunteer firefighter grew up on Long Island was awarded a life save award from his fire department in Stewart Manor. Ian Cioffi is taking part in a Volunteer firefighter campaign.

He decided to take part in the event because the event is related to social works and he would love to do social work.

Ian Cioffi says: “people got satisfaction from money or maybe from being drunk but for me, social work is a precious satisfaction and by doing this I can nail everything”.

Apart from the Volunteer firefighter he works for Uber and does webmaster for a popular website. He was also formerly worked as a Master Control Operator at Regional News Network. Now he is living in Queens, NY. Ian Cioffi supports the incredible and pioneering work of webmaster and its research partner.

He also raises money to help the fire suffering people for the best possible care to people, educate the researchers and clinicians of tomorrow and support leading-edge research that aims to develop new treatments for burn people.

With the generosity of people like Ian Cioffi, we are able to fund new, exceptional technologies, innovations and research breakthroughs.

Being a Volunteer firefighter he faced so many challenges during their work. Many times he played with his life to save a person. Now, he is married and has one kid. After marriage, he shifted to Queens, NY.

Please contact Ian Cioffi, if you have any questions or to find out more information about the volunteer firefighter.
