

Jose Pineiro’s Role in the Remarkable Transformation of Alvernia Building

This Press Release is written to inform the readers about Jose Pineiro’s role in the remarkable transformation of Alvernia Building.

Avila, Aug 22, 2019 (IssueWire.com) - The Alquimia Hostel is one of a kind in Cádiz. Also popular as a house of noble widows and guests, the hostel consists of double, triple, family and multiple rooms available at prices ranging from just € 15 to € 18. Jose Pineiro who has been taking care of the hostel with his wife for years now has played a remarkable role in the building's transformation.

The Alvernia building was remodeled back in 1780 with zero catalog, almost like the cathedral. After that first restoration, a bourgeois named Martínez Yepes turned it into a widow's house. Martínez Yepes still names the Foundation that has benefited from the initiative piloted by Pineiro and his wife.

"They had to leave the building and the activity of the former managers, who from the widow's house became a residence for the elderly, it was at that point when they asked us for advice on what to do with the building, we projected the possibility of converting it into a shelter and that is how it was," Jose Pineiro shared during one of his interviews.

About Jose Pineiro

Jose Pineiro owns and runs a hotel named Alquimia Hostel with his wife, Natalia. It is in the beautiful estate of bourgeois origins in Spain. It is a charming little hotel located on a property of Santiago Terry Street, 9. The clients of this hotel are the residents of a bourgeois house Baroque style and an investigation carried out for the location of this hotel stated that it dated back to the end of the XVI. The hotel has received great reviews from guests for everything from the décor, architecture, food, to the hospitality, and more.
