

Acting Workshop at GD Goenka University

School of Communication Students Kept the Audience Spellbound

Gurgaon, Oct 22, 2019 (Issuewire.com) - GD Goenka University is keen to train students in the art of acting. As part of this, the five-day workshop was organized in collaboration with Moonlight Productions for the students of the School of Communication. Theatre artists Imran Zahid and Gaurav Govind trained the students for five days and at the end of the workshop, the students got an opportunity to perform on the stage in front of faculty, colleague students and artists from Asmita Theatre Group. The captivating performance of the students after a short training of five days compelled the audience to sit spellbound. The play was named 'Budhapa' and was focussed on the issues of old age.

On the occasion, the Asmita Theatre Group presented a heart-rending street play 'Dastak' under the direction of Mr. Arvind Gaur. The street play highlighted the violence and harassment that take place against women at the workplace, public places, and home. The play highlighted the vulnerability of girl students. Such harassments are rampant in public transports and market places. The play was a commendable attempt to create awareness among students through Nukkad Natak. The students of the School of Communication of GD Goenka University got a good acting lesson from this outstanding performance. The Deans of School of Communication, School of Fashion Design, School of Education and Dean Student Welfare greeted the students. Professor Debashis Chakrabarti giving a thanks note highlighted the importance of acting and said that GD Goenka University is planning to launch the School of Film and Acting soon.

Media Contact

School of Communication, GD Goenka University

amaresh.jha@gdgu.org

GD Goenka Education City, Sohna Road, Gurgaon

Source : SoC, GD Goenka University

See on IssueWire : <https://www.issuewire.com/acting-workshop-at-gd-goenka-university-1648076729594075>