

American Rock Band Foundry Makes a Comeback with Another Hard-Hitting Composition 'Poker Face'

Foundry once again excited their fans by dropping a chart-topping rock number named 'Poker Face' that includes all the elements of an impactful and groovy song.

Las Vegas, Dec 31, 1969 (Issuewire.com) - Foundry is a popular American rock band who has ventured to produce another smashing hit that will certainly set the stage on fire. The track kicks off with real drum sounds and is evenly surrounded by guitar riffs. Real bass compliments the synth bass and the lead singer confidently allows his notes to reach higher to inject color and character in contrast to the well-programmed instrumentals. 'Poker Face' is anything but a thoroughly enjoyable and groovy rock number that is seemingly going to uplift the mood as the beating pulses works hard with the backing vocals to add a trance-like dimension to the track.

Coming from Las Vegas, Foundry has meticulously composed the song under their renowned label Sleazy Rider Records that highlights the band's collective effort in a brilliant manner. Each band member namely Mark Boals, Chris Lorio, Bjorn Englen, and Marc Brattin have significantly contributed towards the making of this groovy track that builds up their image in a positive direction. The guitar drive melody creates a hardcore rock atmosphere and lets the listener swing endlessly to its thumping drum beats.

'Poker Face' has been inspired by Lady Gaga's original Poker Face and the band has significantly revived the essence of the track by adding their unique style to it. Foundry pulls its inspiration from Lady Gaga and Metallica to compose such hitting productions and they are currently working on their upcoming shows which are scheduled for spring and summer 2020. Follow the band on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter and listen to the marvelous song on Spotify.
