Case management is a managed care technique within the health care coverage system of the United States. It involves an integrated system that manages the delivery of comprehensive healthcare services for enrolled patients. A case manager is a skilled professional trained to help individuals work through their issues and improve their quality of life. Many case managers have advanced degrees in social work. A case manager has an on-going relationship with the client.

Nurse paralegals are nurses who have worked in the nursing profession and have legal training and schooling in the health-care law, malpractice suits, and several other subjects that pertain to the law in the nursing profession. They study and analyze documents, assess patients treatments, and prepare medical summaries for attorneys, insurance companies, and hospitals. Some may testify in courts on various claims or lawsuits.

On a more personal note, Karen's favorite medical publication is the Journal of the American Medical Association.
