Get to know Urologist Dr. Daniel R. Lowe, who serves patients in New Jersey.

New York City, Jan 15, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Dr. Lowe is a board-certified urologist whose clinical interests include minimally invasive surgery, medical and surgical management of stone disease, robotic prostatectomy, BPH/voiding dysfunction, erectile dysfunction/Peyronie's disease, and urologic oncology. He practices at New Jersey Urology in Hackensack and Clifton, New Jersey.

As the largest urology practice in the country, New Jersey Urology is able to provide superior care with even more expertise without compromising personal attention. United, the team of health professionals ensure a comprehensive team approach to medicine. While utilizing the latest technology and techniques, they provide thorough and individualized treatment plans for all urologic conditions. They proudly serve the state of New Jersey at more than 50 convenient locations, with a mission "to deliver cutting-edge, compassionate, integrated urologic care, supported by evidence-based medicine, that optimizes quality of life for our patients while increasing value to all stakeholders."

With a passion for his profession, Dr. Lowe also serves as an attending physician at Hackensack University Medical Center and Holy Name Medical Center. He also operates at The Stone Center of New Jersey in Newark as well as Patient Care Associates in Englewood.

A Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, Dr. Lowe is board-certified in urology by the American Board of Urology, whose mission is to act for the benefit of the public by establishing and maintaining standards of certification for urologists, as well as to work with certified urologists to achieve lifelong learning to ensure the delivery of high quality, safe, and ethical urologic care.

After graduating Summa cum laude with his Bachelor of Arts degree in Biology from Yeshiva University, Dr. Lowe went on to pursue his medical degree at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, where he served as Class President. Thereafter, he completed his residencies within the Department of Surgery and the Department of Urology at Montefiore Medical Center in the Bronx, New York. From 2007 until 2008, he served as Chief Resident in the Department of Urology.

With a special interest in erectile dysfunction, Dr. Lowe has spent one-year studying erectile dysfunction and other smooth muscle disorders. He has presented his laboratory and clinical research at several national meetings, as well as has made various publications and presentations.

In an attempt to further enhance his professional development, he remains a member of several professional organizations, including the American Urological Association, the New York Section of the American Urological Society, the American Medical Association, the American Association of Clinical Urologists, and the Endourological Society. He is also a speaker/moderator for the American Cancer Society.

Urology, also known as genitourinary surgery, is the branch of medicine that focuses on surgical and medical diseases of the male and female urinary-tract system and the male reproductive organs. Urologists specialize in diseases of the urinary tract and the male reproductive system. Patients may be referred to a urologist if their physician suspects they may need treatment for a condition relating to the bladder, urethra, ureters, kidneys, and adrenal glands.

In recognition of Dr. Lowe's professional accolades, he is the recipient of numerous awards and honors, including the Albert Einstein Young Investigators Award in 2006, Ferdinand C. Valentine - NY-AUA-Finalist in 2005 and 2006, Chief Justice of Yeshiva University Supreme Court from 1997 to 1998, Roth Distinguished Scholars in 1997, and on the Dean's List from 1993 to 1998.
