

Ryan Rose Slated to Host 3rd Annual BLM Mustang Taming Course

Renowned horse trainer, Ryan Rose, trains BLM horses for adoption in this unique horsemanship course held annually in Wisconsin.

Madison, Jan 17, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Ryan Rose will be hosting the third annual Ryan Rose Mustang Taming Course from August 17, 2020, through September 4, 2020, at Horse First Farm in Brooklyn, Wisconsin.

In years past, this course has drawn national and international attention, and it is expected to attract the same audience in 2020. This event will surely sell out.

“For the true horse lover, this is the experience of a lifetime,” Ryan explains. “There is nothing that compares to gentling a wild horse. The participants in this course - with my help - will have the unique opportunity to help these BLM mustangs have a future in our world that could otherwise end in slaughter or living out their days in a holding pen.”

These once wild horses have been taken into captivity by the Bureau of Land Management, which then works to place them into private care through its adoption and sales program. Unfortunately, only a fraction of them will ever find suitable homes.

“A horse that is approachable and willing to accept human presence is significantly more likely to be adopted,” states Rose. “By teaching others to work with Mustangs, we aren’t just helping the handful of horses that are chosen for this course. We’re giving the participants the tools to go and make a larger impact after the course is finished.”

The course is three weeks long and includes all tuition, facility costs, and necessary supplies. Personal meals and lodging are not included, but participants will be assisted in finding suitable accommodations. In order to be considered, candidates must submit a 3 to 5-minute video of themselves doing groundwork with a horse.

Auditors are welcome at this event, and sponsorship opportunities are available to approved businesses.

Interested parties should visit <https://rosemustangtaming.com/> for more information.

ABOUT RYAN ROSE

Ryan Rose is a renowned professional horseman based in Brooklyn, Wisconsin. His career as a professional horse trainer and clinician began in 2005, and he has since studied under several world-class horse professionals, including four years spent in formal training with Pat Parelli. Ryan now teaches workshops and clinics all over the world and runs a comprehensive training program at Ryan Rose Horsemanship Center in Wisconsin. He is also a contributor to The Horseman's University, currently the only program of its kind.

He is passionate about creating true partnerships between horses and humans, and his unique approach to fostering that connection truly sets him apart. He is uniquely talented in horse development, and he also enjoys competing and training horses in ranch versatility.

Please visit <http://rosehorsemanship.com/> to learn more. There, you will find a complete listing of workshops and clinics near you, service offerings, educational videos, a free newsletter, and information about the Ryan Rose Horsemanship Internship Program.

Media Contact

Ryan Rose Horsemanship Center

press@rosemustangtaming.com

Source : Ryan Rose Horsemanship Center

See on IssueWire