He is doing his projects. Developing apps and websites. He is always discovering new tech content. He founded Nihal Cyber Security, where along with the team of professionals, he is helping cyber victims for free all across the nation.

This young boy from Varanasi had never thought that he would be able to fulfill all his dreams and would be able to become the inspiration for others. Being an average student in studies, this tech geek always described as “lazy” and no one believed him.

Now, the turning point comes, Nihal is selflessly working for the welfare of rural people of India. He is arranging Skype sessions in villages to motivate rural children so that they can explore their technical knowledge. He worked by making rural children able to look at their wonderful life and should do something unique.

Nihal Umar is one of the most inspiring personalities who just look forward to the achievements of his goal. Despite the fact that Nihal is a school student, he is a Blogger || Author || Influencer and self-proclaimed ethical hacker.
