

Peter Olsen drops five country songs sung in his compelling voice off the new EP 'Songs of Love and Death'

The Australian singer and instrumentalist, Peter Olsen records the five acoustic/country songs in 'Songs of Love and Death' that have all shades of love and commitment to his art.

Melbourne, Dec 31, 1969 (Issuewire.com) - The new Australian singer Peter Olsen wins over the hearts of avid music lovers with his sweet-sounding vocal that carries beautiful acoustic symphonies in each of the new songs produced by Distrokid. His mellifluous country records in the latest EP 'Songs of Love and Death' places a sweet reminiscence of a beautiful love story, the journey of traveling the unknown roads, and his carefree decisions that have built him to the moment. The new EP is made up of five overwhelming songs taking care of a variety of genres from country to pop.

The new EP 'Songs of Love and Death' is a blend of the warm emotional immediacy and idiosyncrasies that have brought him closer to his roots, revived in the sultry waves that break over the shores of Australian coasts. His tempting voice modulating through the soft touch of folk instrumentations is the biggest highlight of the musical collation. The first track from the EP is 'Daydream' that is an acoustic/pop song crafted in simple melodies that strongly generate the effervescing feeling of love and the butterflying in our stomach with his dulcet singing and an innocent love story.

Peter Olsen is a famous personality in the industry for his credits with BBC News, CBS News, E-News, and many famous endeavors. He is also a Music Therapist who spread joy with his guitar touch. 'Why Don't You Stay' and 'Setback' are the next tracks off the recent EP that are built-in smooth riffs of country music. 'Take It All Away' and 'Watching Over You' is the remaining last two delightful pop and acoustic tracks of the EP that are all available on Spotify.
