Northern Ireland, Dec 31, 1969 (Issuewire.com) - Existing simultaneously outside of mainstream musicality, the genre of alternative rock has been blessed with outstanding thematic freedom adapting to a variety of musical styles from various genres. Bringing a new wave of resonating versatility, popular alternative rock musician Declan Bailie is reshaping the genre with his one-of-a-kind musical cocktail that sets the benchmark for contemporary standards. Rich in dynamic instrumental riffs, his latest song 'have you ever' incorporated with captivating acoustic sonic structures forms an eccentric symphony of absolute perfection. Wrapped in the warm embrace of the delightfully potent melody, the eloquent lyrical illustration of the track gets amplified through the backing up of his breathtaking vocal delivery.

Growing up with the whole grunge movement of Nirvana and Pearl Jam, and Soundgarden, the aspiring artist has been highly inspired by their heavy electric guitar and dragging lyrics and crafting his inimitable soundscape around it. His other masterful track 'Proud' brings out a gentler melodic pattern merging with flickers of instrumentation in perfect harmony providing an impeccable backdrop for his boisterous yet idyllic singing. The thought-provoking verbal imageries enhanced through polished symbolization bring out the true essence of his wondrous artistry. Armed with his robust vocal dexterity, the brilliant musician takes his musical performances to their dynamic height.

Hailing from Downpatrick, UK, Declan Bailie has been recording and mixing his soundtracks from his small home recording studio singlehandedly. His most popular single 'have you ever' and 'Proud' exude the vintage '60s and '70s harmonic charm of Janis Joplin, the Doors, Led Zeppelin, Jethro Tull, and many more with a hint of the unique touch of the artist himself. The staggering guitars, syncopated drums interlaces with his matchless singing prowess of the tracks have moved the audience generating genuine and powerful reactions.
