Get to know Licensed Clinical Psychologist Dr. Allie Wright, who serves patients in Las Vegas, Nevada.

New York City, Aug 11, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - Dr. Wright is a licensed clinical psychologist who focuses on the psychological health and well-being of adult men and women who are contending with general mental health, psychological illness, and interpersonal concerns. She sees patients at her private practice - Allison Wright PsyD LLC - located in Las Vegas, Nevada.

With a focus on psychodiagnostic evaluation and individual psychotherapy, her therapeutic approach is to provide an emotionally safe environment and support to help patients gain awareness, insight, and effectively address personal challenges that may be standing in their way of being and relating to others. "My job is to help you sift through the wealth of information out there and collaborate with you based on your own personal needs and unique history. I use an integrative approach to offer a tailored treatment plan for each patient. With empathy, understanding, genuineness, and (most importantly a good sense of humor), I work collaboratively with you, at your own pace, to assist and challenge you in building upon your strengths and reach the goals you are committed to achieving” as stated by the doctor.

Licensed by the Board of Psychological Examiners in the State of Nevada and the California Board of Psychology, Dr. Wright serves as a Secondary Clinical Supervisor for pre- and post-doctoral psychology interns. “You will find me to be a collaborative, supportive, and challenging supervisor - similar to my clinical work. I focus on clinical areas as it pertains to practice of psychology that includes diagnosis, treatment, risk assessment, professional standards of practice; professional ethics; acquisition and use of relevant knowledge and skills; professional development; values and attitudes that support collaboration with patients; clarity about professional identity, role accountabilities and responsibilities; and professional self-care” she expressed.

Trained in psychodynamic, cognitive-behavioral, and other evidence-based treatments, Dr. Wright holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology from California State University, Northridge; a Master of Arts degree in Psychology from Pepperdine University; a Master of Arts degree in Psychology from the California School of Professional Psychology; and a Doctor of Psychology degree in Clinical Psychology from the California School of Professional Psychology. She completed her post-doctoral internship at Kedren Community Mental Health and Psychiatric Hospital in Los Angeles, California.

Having been working in the mental health field for over three decades, she has been helping others across the lifespan in a variety of settings. These include: hospital & medical facilities, community mental health agencies, college counseling centers, crisis hotlines, and independent practice. She has been providing consultation for multi-disciplinary teams of psychologists, social workers, psychiatric nurses, counselors, and physicians. She has also taught numerous courses (Psychology, Human Services, Counseling) at the college-level and graduate level, including serving as an administrator overseeing a clinical counseling program and counseling center.

A member of the American Psychological Association, Dr. Wright served as a Master Trainer / Mental Health Facilitator through the National Board of Certified Counselors – International (2013 - 2015), Board Member of the Nevada Counseling Association (2013 - 2014), President of the Nevada Counseling Association (2014 - 2015), President of the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention, Nevada Chapter (2015 - 2016), and Board Member of the Community Counseling Center of Southern Nevada (2017 - 2018).

Clinical psychology is a broad branch of psychology that focuses on diagnosing and treating mental, emotional, and behavioral disorders. Some of the more common disorders that might be treated include mood disorders like depression, anxiety, or bipolar disorder, in addition to trauma influenced problems such as personality disorders and behavioral difficulties like eating disorders. Licensed clinical psychologists meet with patients to identify problems - emotional, mental, and behavioral - occurring within their lives. Through observation, interviews, and psychological tests, they aim to diagnose any existing disorders or difficulties for their patients.
