London, Aug 26, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Are you tired of dealing with the disastrous past months of your life due to the extra menace created by novel virus? Then, Blinded by Science's new pop song 'Recalling' ft. by Miami Girl can be your true painkiller. It is the solo project of Music Producer Aubrey Whitfield, a London based songwriter and famous music producer who has worked with Simon Webbe (Blue), South Korean star J-Fla, Charlotte Kelly (Soul II Soul).

She is a well-known music producer and songwriter who has grown with time and experience while working with big and upcoming artists from the United Kingdom. She is a nostalgic person and loves to feel the magic of the 80s synthpop sound in her creation. She brings out the best version of pop sound from the blend of the past and present trends in pop culture and the world loves it. Blinded by Science is the solo project that opened many doors to her musicality, letting her into a world full of wonderment. In this project, she collaborated with many major independent artists across the globe.

'Recalling' is a synthpop song with alterative beats that will clutch your pearls once you hit the play button. You fly to dreamland with its wavy melodies and retro magic. She creates nostalgia with Miami Girl's infectious vocals that sing about her earnest desires. It's a love song, a powerful lyrical blast that reminds of the good old times and how that's always a good reason to come back for more.
