

The Musical Duo, Alan Tuck & Tim Ransom, Dished Out New Pop Songs Made From Afar During The Quarantine

The talented songwriters and composers from Toronto, Alan Tuck, and Tim Ransom plays with your heart and tune it with the magical piano ballads and acoustic numbers.

Toronto, Aug 3, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - As the season of love has come with the new fall, Alan Tuck teams up with Tim Ransom to forge their friendship into a ground-breaking duo partnership with some exceptional pop music. They are the most-talked duo performers in the recent American music industry and all this happened after they had risen to prominence with their first chartbuster number 'Waiting for You'. The Toronto artists have made some new songs on Spotify that are enriched with cinematic love songs and expressions of undying romance. They have engrossed the huge audience with the acoustic melodies and words that present the idea of timeless love.

Music is the best form to project the feelings inside one's heart, and the duo is not shy about writing about the intimate feeling singing about the collision of heart with breakup pain. 'Falling Down' is a song made with instances that tells a common story the hearts and daggers. Sometimes losing in life is inevitable and they will teach you to cherish the small moments of togetherness with their music. 'Give Me Love' is weaved with strange pop rhythms and strong guitar tuning to melt your heart with ethereal singing about the passion of love.

Alan Tuck and Tim Ransom made a wonderful composition with opening piano ballads in the newest single 'Love of My Life'. The opening lines describe the distance between two lovers and that fades away with a simple promise. Its airy lyrics, soft piano shuffles steal the show and the singer's acoustic version of singing about the clumsy phase in his life has been highlighted to the fans in the most breath-taking way.
