Trucking Company in California: Primary Segments

There are two prime segments within our trucking Industry: truckload and less-than-truckload (LTL). In this process, truckloads carriers fill a trailer with large amounts of cargo from one customer, usually with a single destination in mind. Our LTL operators fill a trailer with small amounts of cargo from several different customers, requiring various delivery destinations. Our LTL carriers stop at numerous terminals and goods are transferred between several different vehicles before reaching the final destination. Our provided both types of trucking services maintain a network of terminals and distribution centers across the country.
