

Surgery Group Crowns Mr Manchester Lewis Ellis

The recently-crowned Mr Manchester and former BBC TV The Apprentice star, Lewis Ellis has augmented his crowd-pleasing good looks with a visit to Surgery Group to look after a slight hair loss he was suffering.

Manchester, Sep 30, 2020 (IssueWire.com) - Androgenetic alopecia or typical male pattern baldness as it is more commonly known affects hair on the temples and/or crown of the head. This very common form of hair loss can continue to recede into the scalp and leads to the familiar 'M' shaped hairline.

He contacted Surgery Group who work with cosmetic surgeons around the UK. He had a consultation with Dr Ismail Ughratdar before he underwent the relatively painless hair transplant procedure and is consequently thrilled with the result, as testified to via his Instagram account!

Lewis very narrowly missed out winning last year's 'The Apprentice' – but the Mancunian from the final five continues to celebrate being from Manchester with his victory as the city's Mr Manchester, the male equivalent of the Miss Manchester pageant, complete with its eveningwear round, the infamous beauty pageant staple of the swimwear round and a final talent round.

Since appearing on The Apprentice, Lewis has gone on to start his own travel company Hiddn Travel, which like many travel enterprises has been affected by the Covid-19 pandemic. However, not one to keep too still, he keeps his finger on the business pulse with his 'disruptive' marketing services, turning all the traditional marketing rules upside down and helping companies to rethink their whole marketing and advertising campaigns and strategies.

Taking inspiration firmly from his mum Christine, she was struggling to feed her own four children (including Lewis) as well as two cousins of Lewis, yet at the same time not only maintained her job in the NHS, but also paid her way and found the time to study mental health at university.

"I owe so much to the inspiration and example of my mum. OK, I didn't win The Apprentice. But neither did the 50,000 plus others who applied! Yes, OK, I missed out on winning, but the experience taught me so much, and I have never lost sight of the fact that I was there as an ordinary Mancunian lad, not a boy of privilege with nothing better to do.

The one thing I always say to people is that it makes no difference where you are from. It is only you who can change your destiny. Never, ever be embarrassed by your upbringing. Like me, it should only energise you.

I was also so surprised at how painless and quick the procedure at Surgery Group was. The staff were great, and the recovery was in no time at all. I was very impressed."

Matthew, patient co-ordinator from Surgery Group, said; "It was a pleasure to meet Lewis. His condition is very common amongst men and the fact he recognised it early enough meant we could take successful remedial action.

"You can tell by both his attitude to business and life and by speaking with him that he was most certainly a deserved finalist in The Apprentice".

About:

Surgery Group is an independent team of patient coordinators and has been an evolving business since we started with a laptop and a mobile phone in June 2015.

With an extensive background in the Hair Transplant Industry it was clear that patients that booked directly with the surgeons were paying considerably less than those that were booking through indirect providers.

With the support of some forward-thinking surgeons we were able to present their collective locations under one brand, being Surgery Group. If we take care of the logistics and present them with a well-informed patient the surgeons can stick to what they do best which is the medical examination and the surgery itself while we take care of keeping the patient up to date with their treatment plan and payment options and so on.
