Nepean, Dec 11, 2020 (Issuewire.com) - The Global mHealth market is poised to grow at a CAGR of around 31.5% by 2028.

mHealth Technology is one of the prominent trends, the market is witnessing including a rising focus on online consultations, remote diagnostics, and monitoring. COVID 19 has presented new challenges in remote healthcare and telemedicine and mobility paved a way to simplify healthcare practices such as research, monitoring, scheduling appointments, managing hospital operations, and much more.

The growing demand for remote patient care and monitoring amid the pandemic is increasing the push toward digitalization in the healthcare industry. And this increasingly virtual healthcare environment is encouraging investors to look beyond and seize attractive investment opportunities.

There are plenty of businesses that were founded during or around the time of economic crises, and COVID-19 has brought the same opportunity knocking at the door.

Techugo, has always remained engrossed with the smartest of ideas, and concepts to create that next big thing. To help you practice the best of the health tech market and the way to invade it with the mobility idea, Techugo is coming up with a webinar titled “mHealth: decoding the NEXTBIGWHAT!”.

If you're striving to build a digital healthcare offering and have queries to get exposure to extensive investment opportunities and consultations with top industry leaders, among other things, then your quest ends here.
