Maryland, Bethesda, Jan 26, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - Ignite Social Impact (“Ignite”) is a Tech-for-Good funding portal and continues to expand its potential to address the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals by welcoming Chris Lee as an advisor. Chris is a leader in developing financial solutions to social problems and will help Ignite democratize impact investing. Ignite enables anyone, regardless of their net worth or annual income, to invest in private US-based companies that they believe will make our world better through technology.

Chris Lee is experienced as an entrepreneur, civil servant, investor, and executive, having developed strategies and completed transactions across thirty countries and ten sectors. Mr. Lee currently serves as Managing Director of Strategic Growth for Palladium, an international advisory, and management firm with 3,000 employees and activities in 90+ countries. Prior to Palladium, Mr. Lee was Director of the Milken Institute Center for Financial Markets, Head of its Capital for Innovation program, and Co-Chair of the FasterCures Biomedical Innovation Incubator.

Mr. Lee said, “Of the many lessons the pandemic is teaching us, two of the most important are that our systems aren’t designed on equitable access and that people can come together in novel ways to overcome those access challenges. I’m proud to be part of the Ignite Social Impact team, which is drawing on these lessons to provide a platform for people to unite around the best ideas and broaden participation in their benefits.”

Rosemarie Truman, Co-Founder, and CEO of Ignite added, “Ignite is honored to welcome Chris Lee as Advisor. With increased limits for investors and issuers going into effect on March 15th, with Chris’ incredible intellect on the team, Ignite is ready to rapidly scale and deliver positive social impact around the world.”
