The sound designed by music artist Balder Gernot is a compelling verse of experimental dark rock music that pays tribute to various themes in the course of history.

Agrigento, Feb 1, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - Exemplifying an eccentric course of musical interpretation is artist Balder Gernot and his diversity of themes and tonal undulations. The artist is a prolific rock artist who imbibes the themes and virtues of various subjects from across history and the modern age to deliver his creative exquisiteness. Recently, he has been playing around with the theme of the Roman Empire and has come up with an album, Roman Empire, Vol. 2 with ten songs depicting their raw, uncut strength through his musical interpretations. The song, 'The First Fight' is an instrumental saga that sets the mood to his soundscape that is rich and endless.

Expressing himself through the notes of varied interpretations, his idea of experimental rock also led to the making of another song from the same album, 'We Fight Like Wolves'. He likes to call his music experimental that beautifully coordinates various themes and musical structures. The album on its own is based on instrumental music that creates ancient Roman music with a twist of rock modernity set in a dark infusion. The other song, 'We fight Like Dancers' also imbibe a similar essence that is crucial to his collective sound. Overall, the album stands for his understanding of music alongside a compelling thematic verse.

Hailing from Atripalda, Italy, Balder Gernot works out of his production label by the same name. From a young age, he was influenced by some of the greatest names in rock history such as Black Sabbath, Depeche Mode, Led Zeppelin, Emerson Lake & Palmer, and more. His other songs include 'Exploring the World Together', 'Escape Together', 'We Can Do it', ' and 'Roma Caput Mundi' among others. His soundscape explores new themes and arrangements while imbibing the essence of rock in its tunes.
