New Jersey-based emerging musical artist/producer Vince Skrtel (Schneider Cadet) is starting this year with his newest single entitled “Goodbye Memories” which has just been released on February 15th, 2021. “Goodbye Memories” is part of a new experience that allowed me to create and swim into a melody. “I really felt that vibe and it also motivates (me) to share more with the world,” stated Vince about his recent song, and it is safe to say that he successfully drifts his style from the earlier Future Soul number, “Cloud Perfume” to the more soulful downtempo track in “Goodbye Memories”.

Vince Skrtel used “Goodbye Memories” as a way for him to keep being alive during his quarantine, and it can be heard clearly that he did take his own time at home carefully crafting this song. Each element in “Goodbye Memories”—from the melodic trap-infused RnB beats, basslines, to synth shots—is weaved so seamlessly together along with the atmospheric ethereal-like vocal arrangement, resulting in a whole sound that can immediately invite you in. As the track progresses, “—but day by day I’m starting to be free. It’s gonna take some time”, it keeps opening up with such warm and nostalgic emotion-evoking euphoria in which may soothe your mind while giving you a needed place to reminisce the past and embrace what is in front of you during this uncertain period of time.

“Goodbye Memories” is a rich-detailed electronic production that has both melancholy and uplifting instrumentation in a balanced manner at its every turn. And this very track proves to the world that Vince Skrtel’s creativity is versatile enough to bounce back-to-back between the two styles of music without having to lose his distinctive identity.

Following the new single, Vince Skrtel is currently working on his EP that is expected to be coming out this summer.

“Goodbye Memories” is now available worldwide on all digital streaming platforms such as Spotify, Apple Music, iTunes, YouTube, Amazon, Pandora, Deezer, Tidal, iHeartRadio, and many more.
