Get to know Emergency Physician Dr. David Mooradian, who serves patients in Annapolis, Maryland.

New York, New York City, Mar 26, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - Specializing in emergency medicine, Dr. Mooradian is prepared to treat patients suffering from a wide range of acute illnesses, injuries, or conditions. Since April of 2009, he has been serving as the Chief Medical Informatics Officer at Anne Arundel Medical Center in Annapolis, Maryland.

As such, he serves as a senior liaison between physicians and the IT Department. He is responsible for managing issues surrounding electronic medical records and hospital workflows, including but not limited to orders management, training, documentation, and strategic planning.

Since 2001, he has also been a part of the team of professionals at Doctors Emergency Service PA. It is a group of doctors, nurse practitioners, and physician assistants who provide emergency care for the adult and pediatric emergency departments, and the pediatric inpatient unit at Anne Arundel Medical Center.

With a broad educational background, Dr. Mooradian graduated with his medical degree from the University of Massachusetts Medical School in 1998. He then went on to perform his residency in emergency medicine at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine in 2001.

A member of the American College of Emergency Physicians, he is board-certified in emergency medicine by the American Board of Emergency Medicine (ABEM). The ABEM certifies emergency physicians who meet its educational, professional, and examination standards.

Emergency medicine, also known as accident and emergency medicine, is the medical specialty concerned with the care of illnesses or injuries requiring immediate medical attention. A pediatric emergency physician is a specialist in the care of children and teens who are acutely ill or injured. They are trained to care for a wide range of problems that require immediate medical help. These problems are often serious and may be life-threatening.
