

Seven Pillars Law Opens in Israel on Independence Day

Central Asia's Leading Law Firm Opens Its Fifth International Office, Adding Tel Aviv to its offices in Dubai, London, Cape Town and Nursultan

Tel Aviv, Ramat Hasharon, Apr 15, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - Seven Pillars Law is blazing a trail as the first AIFC headquartered Kazakh law firm to establish a representative office in Israel. The new office is the firm's fifth, and immediately follows the opening of its representative office in Dubai, located on the iconic QE2.

"Listening to what our clients want and where they do business is a core focus for the team at Seven Pillars. Many of our clients in the Gulf Cooperation Council want to explore the Israeli market. Equally, our technology clients in Israel want to explore new opportunities in the Gulf and Central Asia," said Seven Pillars' Co-Founder Mark Beer.

"Given our strength in these regions combined with the newly-signed Abraham Accords, which marked the beginning of a normalisation of relationships between Israel and the United Arab Emirates, Seven Pillars can ensure that it is able to meet its clients' global business imperatives while providing the superlative legal services that it is fast becoming known for." Mr. Beer went on.

"Through our affiliation with Horev & Co., a highly reputable boutique law firm in Israel, we have a deep bench able to work on a variety of matters affecting companies and individuals in both the Israeli market and abroad. Horev & Co manages a substantial amount of legal work for companies with Israeli interests and has vast experience in the Israeli high-tech industry, specifically in technology and international transactions. The firm is now globally recognised, and provides a wide range of legal services to local and international individuals and large business organizations, operating at the highest professional standards.

Thanks to this new affiliation, Seven Pillars' can establish an impactful presence in Tel Aviv, the beating heart of Israel's flourishing high-tech economy. We believe that combining the expertise and know-how of Seven Pillars with the skill set and knowledge of Horev & Co provides our clients with an end-to-end solution supporting clients doing business in this exciting market, and our presence will serve as a gateway for companies, entrepreneurs, investors, funds and other professionals to gain entry."

Together with our global partners around the world, we do more than just provide legal services; we build business bridges for our clients, connecting them with the right players and the right resources to gain a competitive edge." concluded Mr. Beer.

Seven Pillars is perfectly placed to support clients with investments and business into and from Israel, in the Astana International Financial Centre, and with representative offices in London, Cape Town, and Dubai. Seven Pillars' clients range from high-net-worth individuals to some of the biggest companies in the world.

Kim Siegel, the co-founder of Seven Pillars Law, said, "Israel is an inspiring and innovative place to do business. With the language and cultural differences, it can be challenging to access and confidently do business there. We recognise the importance of offering our clients trusted legal solutions there, and our association with Horev & Co allows us to do just that. We are very proud and excited with this association."

Karin Horev, the founder of Horev & Co., said, "I am thrilled with our association with Seven Pillars as it provides our clients with the ability to receive a broad spectrum of professional legal services around the globe. I am certain that this association will be prosperous for our clients and us, enabling our clients to benefit from the know-how we have accumulated for more than 20 years. Our law firm, located in the heart of Tel-Aviv, offers its clients highly professional, individually tailored legal services in various corporate and commercial fields, especially within the High-Tech industry, combining legal excellence with a practical and innovative business approach. I am sure that the association with Seven Pillars will provide our clients with an advantage within the industry, in the Israeli market as well as around the world".

Seven Pillars is the only law firm in Central Asia that offers comprehensive, strategic advice by world-class lawyers with unrivalled experience in business and legal practice, in government and judiciary. Seven Pillars' global network comprises 850 lawyers, enabling us to serve our clients on each continent in any industry and in diverse areas of practice. The firm is named after the Zheti Zhargy, the 7 foundational pillars of the Kazakh legal system introduced in the 17th Century by Khan Tauke. By following that heritage, Seven Pillars has become one of the leading law firms in Central Asia.
