At Heath Refinishing they try to maintain an equal quality of craftsmanship for an affordable price. To deliver a quality job they deeply observe the piece of furniture to choose the best method to recover the natural beauty of the furniture. Heath Refinishing does not cover the damages on the furniture instead of that they will repair the wood itself by removing the old or damaged finish.

Process followed by Heath Refinishing:

Removal of old finishes cannot be possible without the necessary equipment and knowledge. The process followed by the company to make an old antique piece into a new one is stripping, fixing, sanding, staining, and finishing. A cutting-edge system involves several steps. The first step is to remove and clean hardware, and then by using the Flow-over system all surfaces are chemically stripped to remove existing finish and stain without damaging the wood, veneer, or glue. Next, to remove stripper residue all surfaces are rinsed with power water.

The next step is sanding which is the most important step in furniture refinishing. In Heath Refinishing sanding process is done by hand to prevent the swirl marks and irregular sanding patterns which are left behind in electric sanders. The next step is the staining process, in the staining process, they only use the top-of-the-line dye which penetrates into the wood surface to give natural beauty to the wood. Dye stains have a long lifetime and that will give beauty to the furniture for many years.
