

Los Angeles community mourns the loss of Earl Reginald Stevenson

California, Los Angeles, Jun 7, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - A Los Angeles community is mourning the sudden death of Earl Reginald Stevenson, an iconic former resident of Studio City, California in the Los Angeles San Fernando Valley.

Earl Reginald Stevenson passed away in Durban, South Africa.

The former Studio City, California resident was a well-remembered resident of the exclusive Toluca Lake community and a fixture in the community. Remembered as being very influential, recognizable, and revered in the community for his philanthropy and community involvement.

He passed away suddenly from natural causes at his home in an exclusive upscale Umhlanga Rocks gated community outside of Durban. His close neighbor is famed South African golfer, Gary Player.

He leaves behind his wife, Denise Carpenter, two sons, Wyatt and Ethan, and a daughter, Kimber.

His family and his mother, Dorothy Stevenson, also known as DeeDee, declined the interview and has asked for family privacy during this time.

Funeral at St. Pauls Anglican Church in Durban's city center.
