

"STARNEST" Leading The World Towards A New Era Of Space Exploration

"STARNEST" The American private space exploration company that seemingly has a high potential to grow faster than any other companies in the market.

Missouri, Fulton, Jun 18, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - STARNEST is an American aerospace development company, which plans to manufacture advanced spacecraft and other vehicles related to aerospace. The company was founded back in 2020, by two individual entrepreneurs with the vision of adding sustainability to the field of space exploration.

As the emerging global space economy valued at around 423.8 billion U.S. dollars in 2019 (includes a range of activities involved in the researching, exploring, and utilization of space). Private space companies are leading a vital role behind the immersive growth of the space market. In the last few decades, we have seen private space companies competing with government agencies and taking the charge to dominate the industry. As more and more companies are entering the market, the industry's getting competitive for smaller startups. While several companies stepped out of their operations due to the pandemic, this company standout everyone by announcing their very first project in June 2021.

Our company is going to build a spacecraft which shall have the ability to refuel itself while traveling to reach the orbit, as we are planning not to invest a single dollar for fueling the vehicle, said the founders. The founders have created a crowdfunding program on Kickstarter to get their project funded. After a long-term reviewing process, Kickstarter approved the project to raise funds. Although their manufacturing tactics have not been published yet, the audience might need to wait until the project launches.
