

Bahari iBaadat Interview for Ariana Magazine

Bahari iBaadat Ariana Magazine issue 4

BAHARI IBAADAT

Miss Afghanistan

@Bahariibaadat

Bahari Ibaadat is an American model from Afghanistan she won Miss Afghanistan in 2014. The pageant was held in Dubai due to the situation in Afghanistan it was unsafe to hold the event there. Ibaadat has worked with many companies and brands such as Hollister, Abercrombie, Fitch, and she was featured on the cover of Safi Airways Magazine. The model has also taken part in many fashion shows including Atlanta fashion week, New York fashion week, Seattle fashion week, South Korea fashion show, Miss Washington pageant, Miss Bellevue pageant, Beverly Hills fashion show and many more. As well as modelling Ibaadat has many talents, she likes writing poetry, dancing, and singing. She said: "I am currently working on my song that I am dedicating to my mother."

Ibaadat talks about her childhood life, she said: "My teenage years were a colourless palette of darkness. I did not realize it back then I was going through depression and I had no way to express my feelings to anyone. I was taken care of 8 people in my household at the same time as I was attending school. I did not want to be a disappointment, so I had to set an example for them. I became a successful entrepreneur and with the blessing of the most-high. I believe the reason for my successes in my life is because I had my mom prayers."

She decided to become a model to give meaning to what a model is. She said: "A model is not just someone who puts on makeup or someone who shows skin. As an Afghan model, I wanted to make sure I can inspire girls who are at home thinking my dream is impossible to achieve if I can be Afghan model they can be whatever they dream of being, anything is possible. I want to show the true beauty of my country and my love for Afghanistan. I faced many struggles to make my modelling dream come true. The hardest part was to make sure I get my education and at the same time working to provide for my family. It was not easy, but the struggle was worth it."

In 2014 Bahari Ibaadat was crowned Miss Afghanistan in Dubai. She said: "We had over 88 girls around the world there and there were 9 of us from America. When I won Miss Afghanistan in 2014 it was the best moment of my life. I was a tomboy during my childhood, and I was never told I was beautiful. So, once I won Miss Afghanistan, I could not believe it, it was the proudest moment of my life to be able to represent my country. I was lost for words as I was named the most beautiful girl in my country." Moreover, Ibaadat said: "The Afghan community's reaction toward my work was not so positive. I believe in our community there is more love and respect for singers than a model. I faced lots of hate more than love at the beginning. When my work started growing, they started to see that I am not just a model for looks I am trying to pass on positive messages to young girls who want to become model. My message for Afghan women who wants to become model is I know it's not easy I know you are scared of what others will think but don't give up and go after your dreams you can make a difference."

California, Beverly Hills, Aug 7, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - INTERVIEW WITH BAHARI IBAADAT

Bahari Ibaadat is an American model from Afghanistan she won Miss Afghanistan in 2014. The pageant was held in Dubai due to the situation in Afghanistan it was unsafe to hold the event there. Ibaadat has worked with many companies and brands such as Hollister, Abercrombie, Fitch, and she was featured on the cover of Safi Airways Magazine. The model has also taken part in many fashion shows including Atlanta fashion week, NewYorkfashionweek, Seattlefashionweek, South Korea fashion show, Miss Washington pageant, Miss Bellevue pageant, Beverly Hills fashion show, and many more. As well as modeling Ibaadat has many talents, she likes writing poetry, dancing, and singing. She said: "I am currently working on my song that I am dedicating to my mother."

Ibaadat talks about her childhood life, she said: "My teenage years were a colorless palette of darkness. I did not realize it back then I was going through depression and I had no way to express my feelings to anyone. I was taken care of 8 people in my household at the same time as I was attending school. I did not want to be a disappointment, so I had to set an example for them. I became a successful entrepreneur and with the blessing of most high I believe my reason for successes in my life is because I had my mom prayer

She decided to become a model to give meaning to what a model is. She said: "A model is not just someone who puts on makeup or who supported me and allowed me to share my someone who shows skin. As an Afghan model, I wanted to make sure I can inspire girls who are at home ." my dear is impossible to achieve if I can be Afghan model they can be whatever they dream of being, anything is possible. I want to show the true beauty of my country and my love for Afghanistan. I faced many struggles to make my modeling dream come true the hardest part was to make sure I get my education at the same time working to provide for my family. It was not easy, but the struggle was worth

In 2014 Bahari iBaadat was crowned miss Afghanistan there were over 88 girls around the world there and there were 9 of us from America. When I won Miss Afghanistan in 2014 it was the best moment of my life could not believe it, it was the proudest moment of my life

I was a tomboy during my childhood and I was never told that I was beautiful so once I was missing Afghanistan I could not believe it. It was the proudest moment of my life to be able to represent my country. I was lost for words as I was named the most beautiful girl in my country. Moreover, I Baadat said the Afghan community's reaction towards my word was not so positive. I believe in our community there are more love and respect for singers than a model I faced lots of hate more than the love at the beginning when my work started growing they started to see that I'm not just a model for looks I'm trying to pass on a positive message to young girls who want to become model as I know it's not easy I know you are scared of what others will think but don't give up go after your dream You can make a difference

BAHARI IBAADAT

Miss Afghanistan

@Bahariibaadat

Bahari Ibaadat is an American model from Afghanistan she won Miss Afghanistan in 2014. The pageant was held in Dubai due to the situation in Afghanistan it was unable to hold the event there. Ibaadat has worked with many companies and brands such as Hollister, Abercrombie, Fitch, and she was featured on the cover of So! Always Magazine. The model for also takes part in many fashion shows including Atlanta fashion week, New York fashion week, Seattle fashion week, South Korea fashion show, Miss Washington pageant, Miss Bellevue pageant, Beverly Hills fashion show and many more. As well as modeling Ibaadat has many talents, she likes writing poetry, dancing, and singing. She said, "I am currently working on my song that I am dedicating to my mother."

Ibaadat talks about her childhood life, she said, "My teenage years were so colorless and full of darkness. I did not realize it back then I was going through depression and I had no way to express my feelings to anyone. I was taken care of by people in my household at the same time as I was attending school. I did not want to be a disappointment, so I had to set an example for them. I became a successful entrepreneur and with the blessing of my mom, I believe the reason for my success in my life is because I had my mom's prayers."

She decided to become a model to give meaning to what a model is. She said, "A model is not just someone who puts on makeup or someone who shows skin. As an Afghan model, I wanted to make sure I can inspire girls who are at home thinking my dream is impossible to achieve if I can be Afghan model they can be whatever they dream of being, anything is possible. I want to show the true beauty of my country and my love for Afghanistan. I heard many struggles to make my modeling dream come true. The hardest part was to make sure I get my education and at the same time working to provide for my family. It was not easy, but the struggle was worth it."

In 2014 Bahari Ibaadat was crowned Miss Afghanistan in Dubai. She said, "We had over 40 girls around the world there and there were 8 of us from America. When I won Miss Afghanistan in 2014 it was the best moment of my life. I was a nobody during my childhood, and I was never told I was beautiful. So, when I won Miss Afghanistan, I could not believe it. It was the proudest moment of my life to be able to represent my country. I was lost for words as I was named the most beautiful girl in my country." However, Ibaadat said, "The Afghan community's reaction toward my work was not so positive. I believe in our community there is more love and respect for singers than in model. I heard lots of hate notes that first of the beginning. When my work started growing, they started to see that I am not just a model for looks. I am trying to pass on positive messages to young girls who want to become model. My message for Afghan women who want to become model is, I know it's not easy. I know you are scared of what others will think but don't give up and go after your dream you can make a difference."

Media Contact

Afghan Iranian news

misstipsahar@gmail.com

Source : <https://arianamagazine.bigcartel.com/product/a>

See on IssueWire