The medical tourism business in India is expected to be worth $5–6 billion by mid-2022. In 2017, around 495,056 people traveled to India for medical treatment. Many companies are working hard to promote Medical Tourism in India and Make A Health Trip is one of them. In 2019, the majority of medical tourists in India came from Southeast Asia, the Moyen East, Africa and the SAARC area, according to research by the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry and Ernst & Young. Medical tourists also visit India in large numbers from Australia, Canada, China, Russia, Great Britain and the United States. The title of Indian healthcare capital has been achieved for Chennai.

SCOPE OF MEDICAL TOURISM IN INDIA

There is a lot of optimism in health tourism. Ayurveda, Yoga, Panchakarma, Rejuvenation Therapy, and other Indian medicinal systems are among the world's oldest medical treatment methods. India can deliver international-standard medical and health services at a reasonable cost. Southern India, particularly Kerala, has created Health Tourism as one of its products for tourism marketing. Health tourism has also been promoted as one of the state's unique selling points. The Ayurveda Centers are becoming an important factor of the majority of hotels and resorts. The majority of international visitors now come to India just for Ayurvedic treatments.

To support this great cause, the Indian government amended its e-tourism VISA system to include medical visas in February 2019, in order to promote applications and make the travel procedure easier for medical tourists. This visa allows you to remain for a maximum of 6 months. Foreigners have been able to obtain any medical treatment in India without a medical visa since August 30, 2019, with the exception of organ transplants.

ADVANTAGES OF MEDICAL TREATMENT IN INDIA

- Cost: Therapy expenses in India start at approximately one-tenth of the price of equivalent treatment in the United States or the United Kingdom, according to most estimates. Alternative medicine, bone marrow transplant, heart bypass, eye surgery, and hip replacement are among the most common procedures sought by medical tourists in India.
- Quality of Care: There are 39 JCI-accredited hospitals in India. However, it is critical for a patient coming to India to select the best doctor-hospital combination. Following treatment, the patient has the choice of recovering at the hospital or in a nearby paid lodging facility. Many hospitals also provide telemedicine as an alternative for ongoing therapy.

Chennai has earned the label "India's Health Capital." Every day, around 150 international patients are admitted to multi- and super-speciality hospitals throughout the city. Chennai is home to around 45 per cent of international health tourists and 30 to 40 per cent of local health tourists.

Tourists flock to the city for a variety of reasons, including inexpensive pricing, little to no waiting time, and the services provided by the city's specialised hospitals. The city contains an estimated 12,500 hospital beds, only half of which are used by the city's inhabitants, with the remainder shared by patients from neighbouring states and foreigners. Dental facilities have attracted dental tourists to Chennai.

- Ease of travel: The government has eliminated visa limitations on tourist visas that forced individuals from Gulf nations to wait two months between trips, which is expected to encourage medical tourism. For visitors from certain countries, a visa-on-arrival system has been implemented, allowing foreign citizens to stay in India for 30 days for medical reasons. Bangladeshis, Afghans, Maldivians, Republic of Korea citizens, and Nigerians received the most medical visas in 2016
- Language: Despite the diversity of India's languages, English is the official language, spoken by the majority of the population and nearly universally by medical professionals.
