Ottawa, Ontario Nov 15, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Writing an academic essay might not be as difficult as you think. You can write an essay depending on the word limit under 30 minutes with the right focus and knowledge of the subject. Essays have become a regular part of the academic curriculum in Canada, especially since the pandemic. You need to have focus and use your analytical skills to provide unique information in relation to the topic. Every academic essay would require you to investigate a specific area and add new information or new analysis to the current literature available on the subject. Student Assignment Solution provides essay writing services in all subjects to students having difficulties writing essays within the stipulated time period. Students in Canada are usually expected to submit 2 to 3 academic essays every month and each of them requires focused research and critical reasoning skills.

To write an academic essay in under 30 minutes, you first need to narrow down your topic to a specific area. The first step is to have the information in hand, therefore you can search for peer-reviewed sources using keywords in relation to the main topic. Look up 2 to 3 articles from journals and narrow down your topic to a specific area. Use these 2 to 3 articles to provide information in relation to the topic and then analyze each article emphasizing its objectives, conclusions, and the gap in the article. Fill this gap using other articles and provide your own interpretation. Once you have all this, you can begin writing your essay. The essay introduction should not be very long and should provide your objective, structure of what you are going to be looking at, and a thesis statement which will come at the end of the introduction. The main body should be divided into 2 to 3 paragraphs where each of them will correspond to a specific finding. Make sure to provide an introductory line before each paragraph and a concluding or guiding line at the end which will ensure a smooth transition. The conclusion again will be short and will not include any new information apart from re-stating the thesis statement. This should only take you not more than 30 minutes to write out the essay when you have all the information in hand.

If you're still having trouble researching the topic, then avail for our assignment help Canada service which will assign an essay writer Canada from the same domain to ensure the quality of the essay.
