Amsterdam, Netherlands Nov 23, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - The LESSEAU No-Touch Soap

Dispenser is almost available, but can already be pre-ordered.

Traditional hard bar soap is far superior to liquid soap in every way except one:

convenience. Many people experience a wet, freshly used soap as unhygienic. Unfortunately, this proved to be that was the deciding factor in the world's adoption of liquid soap.

That is why the Dutch company LESSEAU has taken the principle of bar soap and made it just as practical as its liquid counterpart. With the world's first

No-Touch Soap Dispenser with bar soap as an innovative result. The dispenser contains blades

The dispenser contains blades that automatically scrape off measured portions of soap and drop them on your hands for washing under the tap.

wash them under the tap. Without having to grab the bar soap. A sustainable design that combines innovation, sustainability, convenience, and hygiene.

Sustainable alternative for liquid soap

The world needs a sustainable alternative to liquid soap. Because liquid soap can only be packed in disposable plastic, needs chemicals to stay good and consists of 85-90% water.

consists of 85-90% water. And not just any water, often liquid soap contains freshwater from areas where it is very scarce. So we wash our hands with fresh water from countries that need it most! From there, the water-filled bottles are transported around the world. With even more emissions, waste, and pollution as a result. The LESSEAU No-Touch Soap Dispenser offers a real alternative to liquid soap.

You wash your hands without wasting water, without a huge ecological footprint, and without single-use plastic packaging.

without single-use plastic packaging. But with maximum hygiene and convenience.
