'Undercover' is the follow-up to her 10th studio album 'Cosmicoma', which was released in 2021 to critical praise. "Valentine", which will lead as the first single off Moon's Undercover album, was written by Betty Moon and Justin Smolian of Dirty Honey. Betty's acoustic guitar illuminates a story of a passionate and unforgettable relationship that will send shivers up your spine on every listen. Inspired by films such as Dangerous Liaisons, Shakespeare In Love, and Bram Stoker's Dracula, "Valentine" paints thought-provoking images both black and white and in color.

"Every year, as of February approaches I feel a huge wave of nostalgia, reflecting on a different time in my life that shaped who I am as a person and songwriter," says Moon. "I wanted to include this track along with several of my all time favorite songs that really speak to my soul and to pay tribute to some of the artists that influenced me”.

Over the past 2 years, Betty Moon has managed to stay busy in the studio and used the time to not only release two albums (Little Miss Hollywood and Cosmicoma) but also stay ahead with preparing new original music to release later in 2022. “Undercover is where my head is at right now, as I put the final touches on my next full length I was excited to let my listeners hear some of the best of my cover work as part of a collection. I’ve been taking things back to my roots and listening to some of my favorite artists of past decades to get in the vibe that you’ll hear on Undercover, which I am pretty damn proud of.”

Moon’s music has earned widespread media support from Billboard, American Songwriter, Celebmix, Consequence of Sound, Discobelle, New Noise, Hype Machine, Substream, Spill, and dozens of others. She continues to blend elements of her classic sound and modern electronic/pop directions to create music that The Other Side Reviews says “grips you and takes you on a sonic journey” and “covers everything she has to offer from old-school rock to soulful downtempo songs to electronic-pop blasts.” “Valentine” is available today on all streaming platforms and ‘Undercover’ was released on January 28, 2022).
