What does the Different Alexa Echo Ring Light Mean and How to Fix it?

If you are a regular Amazon Echo user, then you might have noticed different lights on it and wondered what does every light means? Today in this article, we are going to decode the meaning of different lights that will see on your Amazon Echo device powered by Alexa.

Evry light is going to carry and distinctive feature whether it is Alexa purple ring or the blue one. The echo smart show also displays the same light notifications but instead of having the ring lights, there is a light bar that is just below the screen.

Whether or not your echo is receiving the call or alerting you regarding the amazon shopping delivery, there are various colored lights notifications that will help to communicate and help in optimizing the user experience visually.

Well, the different colored lights can be very confusing so in this article, we are going to help you what are the various colors trying to let you know.

Well, in order to know, read the following article in order to find more detail of the colored light and how will you be able to turn it off.

Alexa Blue ring:

Well, the spinning Alexa blue ring is one of the most common things that you are going to see on your Echo device. Well, when you are going to make a voice request to Alexa, the spinning blue light will indicate that the device now processing your request.

Well, in order to be more specific, when the device is processing the request, the blue light is going to be solid and you will see a cyan-colored light that will spin around the ring in order to indicate that Alexa has heard your request. It is in the process that you are dealing with it.

Well, if you ever see the blue light spinning, it might be because the smart speaker might have misheard the word that you have said, or maybe it might have mistaken it for the wake word. Well, if you see that it has happened, then you can command Alexa to stop.

Alexa White ring:

Well, if you see that your Echo displays the white ring, then you have enabled the Alexa guard feature. Thus, now your device is in the away mode. Well, Alexa guard is a safety feature that is available on the Echo devices which enables the Alexa to protect your home while you are away.

Well, the Alexa white ring is going to allow the echo speaker to act as a personal security guard by telling it to listen out for the noises such as smoke alarms. Breaking glass, and carbon monoxide detectors.

Well, if you see that your microphone picks up any kind of dangerous sound, then the Alexa will send the notification to your phone and is going to play a 10-second clip of that noise.

Alexa Red Ring:

Well, if you want to turn the microphone off, then you need to press the microphone on/off button. There is another switch that is on the top that you may need to slide on the echo show to turn off the camera.

The red light is going to be visible for the whole time till the microphone is off.

Alexa yellow ring:

When you see that your Alexa device is flashing the Alexa yellow ring, then it can mean that either the notification if there is a message from one of your Alexa contacts. Well, one of the handy things about having the echo is that it can be linked to your Amazon account.

The yellow light is slightly going to flash every few seconds that will let you know that you have one more of a few notifications on your Amazon account.

When you see that a new notification comes in, then you are going to hear an alert tone that is going to play once. The light is going to continue to flash slowly until you ask to listen to the messages or the notifications.

Alexa orange light:

When you are plugging a brand new speaker, the spinning orange light will signal that the device is in setup mode. Well, during the setup, you are going to see the orange light spinning when your echo device attempts to appear with the Wi-Fi network.

Once it has been established as the connection, then the orange light is going to disappear. Suppose you see the orange light spinning after you have already set up your Alexa device and in that case, then it can mean it is having problems connecting with the Wi-Fi network.

This can happen if you have recently changed the internet provider or when you have replaced your modem or the old router.

With these lights, you will also be facing some light such as the Alexa green ring light. Well, if you are having any issues with the Alexa device, then you can get in touch with our experts. They will provide you with the best solutions!
