Renown Services provide air conditioning services in Melbourne for over 35 years now and are experts in keeping these systems running smoothly. The air conditioning contractors provide exemplary services on making old air conditioners run more efficiently by using high-quality maintenance services. They know what to look for when inspecting your air conditioning system and can find if there is any need for repair or replacement.

Optimal Air Conditioning Solutions in Melbourne

Renown Services introduced the energy-efficient air conditioner by upgrading the existing AC units to energy-efficient products that consume less power, generate fewer carbon dioxide emissions and save customers money on electricity bills.

These old air conditioning units can cost a lot of money and if they are not in good condition, customers could spend thousands of dollars on repairs or replacements. Air conditioning services like maintenance and repair are essential to help customers save money on electricity bills and keep the houses cool during the warmer months.

They make this happen in a three-step process that includes:

- Testing of existing air conditioning units to understand the troubling parts
- Removing old components like the compressor, refrigerant gas, heating element, and fans that consume a high amount of power
- Replacing all old components with new ones to recharge them to operate at an optimal level without any leakage or condensation inside the system.

The team also advises on keeping the system functioning properly so that customers don't find themselves with another expensive repair bill in the near future.

Alan Baird, Founder of Renown Services, says, “Customers with old models of air conditioners spend a lot on the repair. We help them cut down on overall expenses by replacing the old compressor, condenser, or any other component with an energy-efficient one. This means the customer no longer needs to invest in expensive parts and equipment. Also, our customers are happier because they could get the same great service at a lower cost.”

In situations when servicing the air conditioning units isn't possible, the experts at Renown Services recommend alternate energy-efficient air conditioners within the budget that customers can replace with.
