

“Cancel this Movie” plans to take on the cancel culture mob with the most controversial movie yet

In support of comedy and freedom of speech, this independent film is going to the extreme... looking to offend everyone.

Los Angeles, California May 2, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - Two 9 Productions announces the launch of their Indiegogo campaign to raise the additional $50,000 needed for their next feature film, Cancel this Movie. Too many have been undeservingly targeted and lives ruined by the digital witch hunts. People need to be able to laugh and have real conversations, while not being offended by what strangers think.

What happened to freedom of speech? People are becoming afraid to say something publicly for fear of being canceled and dragged through the proverbial mud on the seemingly limitless platforms on the internet. There is no harm in laughing at each other's expense. It's just comedy. Ricky Gervais said it best-

It appears that Hollywood has gone out of its way to being PC and is not delivering the raunchy comedies they have in previous years. That's why Shannon Brown and John Wesley Norton, creators of Cancel this Movie, felt compelled to make the most controversial movie yet to cater to those that still love raunchy comedies. The 10 highest-grossing comedies of all time (according to box office mojo) include "The Hang Over" (all three of them) and "TED".

Even Chris Rock feels things are getting boring, "I see a lot of unfunny comedians, I see unfunny TV shows, I see unfunny awards shows, I see unfunny movies – because everybody's scared to make a move." he told the New York station's Angela Yee and DJ Envy. We are making a move and are not afraid of being canceled, bring it on. We want the public to be involved in the process, the opportunity to contribute will only last on Indiegogo until June 18th.
