London, United Kingdom Apr 25, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - London, United Kingdom, April 25th, 2022 -- London-based Marzian Studios Ltd has announced the official drop of their storyboard-driven NFTs with a first drop called, Meet The Marzians.

The Marzians story starts in the sub-layers of Marz where they live, work and play. All stories are derived from their daily life on Marz, and from current news and social events on what they refer to as UARTH, the 4th planet from the sun. The Marzians tap into social media via Elon Musk’s Starlink satellites and communicate with both humanz and other Marzians who are already on the ground reporting back on what they see and hear.

“We are very excited that we can finally introduce this great story and characters to the rest of the world,” says Polly Charneil, the creator. “They’ve lived in our hearts and minds for a very long time and carried us through an entire Pandemic, so we kept very busy during a very tough time on this great planet.”

The Marzians NFT collection is the first-ever reality-fiction comic strip where current news and social events drive the storyline and the release of the NFT series, and where collectors can own pieces of the storyboard along the way. The community can help map out where the story goes through interaction with the creators in deciding what traits they like best for each character.

Marzian Studios Ltd. was formed to create The Marzians and to inspire more young minds to become more inquisitive about space exploration. The studio has plans and announcements coming in the months ahead to integrate charitable contributions, contests, and prizes that will allow young minds to reach for the stars by giving their own insights about what life on Marz might look like a few decades from now.

Find the first NFT drop on OpenSea, but stay tuned for more characters, traits, and levels to this adventurous story.
