

Young and Energetic Mo Khan: The 20-year-old officially launches The Legacy Makers Activate Missions LLC (April 2022)

Historical Encounters with Legacy Makers: How a 20-year-old is currently working on changing an iconic concept of what once used to be a music album into a real-time business company?

LEGACY MAKERS
ACTIVATE MISSIONS

Las Vegas, Nevada Apr 23, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - It has been two years since the United States went along with the rest of the world into the COVID-19 recession phase, and the general reaction of a typical individual toward making income online per hour and per day has not changed much, as he or she still questions on the worthiness of it.

Typical families are half fearful, half doubtful, and half anxious with the idea that compounding money on their digital devices could be more efficient than traditionally expected at opportunities, such as working multiple regular jobs and making two digits per hour at their workplace(s) a day. However, in recent months of the global economy, more people are actually gearing toward new opportunities to make income online and not necessarily rely on traditional routes to succeed in their own remote business ventures. More young people are getting devoted and working to learn more about De-Fi (decentralized finance) opportunities, as well as teaching others to do the same. In response to the evolution of the global economy in the digital sector(s), Mo Khan, a 20-year old business leader, has recently launched his official business venture known as The Legacy Makers Activate Missions LLC, within his official first week of moving to southern Nevada for the first time.

About The Legacy Makers Activate Missions LLC:

The Legacy Makers Activate Missions LLC is a multi-level entrepreneurship liability company that is scheduled to take over the West Coast in Las Vegas, Nevada as well as in northern California, metro Atlanta Area, and metro Washington-Northern Virginia areas. for the vast majority of the business operations across distinguished industries ranging from day trading and network marketing to tax preparation and credit repair services. The company's name and its concept originated back in the 2019-2020 school year, during Mo Khan's senior year in high school, as a way to express legends by creating a legacy by launching missions with the purpose that benefits both community and mankind for all, from homeless to diverse populations in major sectors. Coming from 2021 into this fiscal year, the company now aims to provide potential clients and business partners the opportunity to give a fair shot for everyone to win, succeed, and build the capacity of working with less stress, but smartly for the finances, they deserve at the end of the day. For decades, many Americans have struggled to showcase the way toward building generational wealth with more results to show off for and display in front of, especially for diverse communities of color across the nation, but that does not have to be the case anymore because the company's team has the crucial blueprint to overcome these adversities and challenges over the long run. It is advisable that not every investment and time spent is durable, during days of triumph and failures, but the company will function and operate with optimism and pride as the best it has ever done for the Millennial and Gen Z generations as well as for the senior and future cohorts across America and the world.

The company intends to advocate the idea of acknowledging no more paying heavy and taking student loans just to go to college in hopes of getting a job that requires so much more waiting game, no more going big or going home with savings and checking money just to earn large for trading and investing, and more importantly, no more waiting on opportunities to knock on doors to start earning income, getting out of hometown, and traveling and working at the same time, at its' own accord. It has been two years since the beginning of a pandemic lockdown for both the United States and the world, and people are still left out with no job or opportunity to make the best out of their new lives from the previous aspects of their life experiences, which is the primary reason why this company has been established in the first place. Thousands of individuals are still working for more hours, yet bringing home less than what they work for, still losing motivation to stay on top of the game due to a lack of guidance and/or reliable connections to make something happen and turn around their lives in their orderly fashion, even after March 2020.

Team leadership and management board will remain aware that investing or trading any sort of capital for businesses and other relevant ventures will not be guaranteed to provide the expected results back to the team, yet it will remain active in ensuring that every business partner and client that works along with the operations and services of the company are given the opportunity to make their own decisions solely based on their financial situations and/or other interests they may have on their side. The company cannot solve every group's expectations and realities behind their own situations with their social functionalities or finances, but it can work as an emerging task force to be the leader in innovation and adaptability toward rapid development changes of technology and the way entrepreneurship is provided and given back to for many families, friends, and so many others in the communities. This LLC project shall be a testament to the legendary blueprint that will expand and last for a lifetime, and the fact that Mo Khan has worked diligently for nearly two years to get to this point of solidifying the concept behind the company's name is a blessing to witness not just as a spectator, but as a key young player seeking to create even more astounding players to his side in a lifetime.

About Mo Khan:

Mo Khan's story and his upbringing started a bit differently than at present-day. At 16, he moved from Northern Virginia to the metro Atlanta area to pursue his advanced education studies and graduated from The Gwinnett School of Mathematics, Science, and Technology (GSMST) with both a high school diploma and an advanced college degree with other technical certifications in Cyber Operations at just 18 years old. Even though he graduated college early with his Class of 2020 at the start of the pandemic nearly two years ago, he remembers how the nation's education system succeeds in giving people the opportunity to study the field of their choice(s) at any time, but not adequately preparing students to succeed financially at the workplace and in their lifestyles after college.

He also remembers how after his first internship that previous summer, he was having a difficult time landing jobs and roles of his choice(s) for Cyber Operations for the longest time and did not want to wait another two years or longer to land in a job. It did take a while to find an opportunity and he did it at last by January 2021, when he met one of his key mentors, especially Devon "The Greatest" Lee, to get into network marketing and day trading ventures. Thanks to his leadership and past experiences of hitting his first million at 23, Mo Khan was able to get into trading productively and took a small $30 account into his forex broker to make over $3000 the following month for the first time. For the rest of 2021, he was able to branch out into network marketing, impacting over 200 lives by coaching financially about the forex trading markets through Zoom meetings or phone conference calls, along with other digital commerce opportunities. Ever since then, Mo Khan has admitted that FOREX and network marketing is what actually allowed him to start branching out into more opportunities to make additional income and change lives, such as financial services, life insurance agency, and proprietary firm trading with major business partners.

Mo Khan responds to this launch emphatically with the following story: "In 2020, I was just 18 years old and only had two goals in my mind at that time: to transition to military life and just live a good life, making like $60,000 annually or even better $100,000 each year through my career after like 3 to 4 years. I was looking for jobs after my recent internship for my school's Senior Capstone Experience (SCE) at the time, and It was even shocking to see myself not landing one, even after getting these certifications and fulfilling requirements within a year. Although I was not surprised that lots of people were going to be laid off during the pandemic, as many of my professors and school mentors told me for the past four to five months before February 2020, I was gut wrecked and felt hopeless, when I was counted out throughout this entire time, and I did not want to wait at all for another two years. So, I needed to make something happen and not have to worry about money much anymore. I was able to make it happen when I met Devon Lee through one of my local friends from Atlanta this past year, and ever since meeting him, I took my financial ventures to new heights with great solid foundations with his help and branched into doing other things I enjoyed being part of while building my network marketing business under his team's wing. Without him, I probably would not be doing multiple things related to finance and business at all and continuing to stick with the waiting game I was doing for six months or so. And I would have remained hopeless and lost to this date, to be honest."

The story continues, "If it wasn't for me making and getting over almost half a million from multiple prop firm trading companies to invest and trade with, entering into the realm of network marketing with strong hands, or FOREX in general, then branching into multiple sectors ranging from financial services to space commerce and so forth wouldn't be such an easy chance for me to grab and seize the power of believing and doing the actual work for it. I remember when the Class of 2020 missed their final proms and other senior activities due to the virus and lost much of their chance to reconnect with their classmates since graduation, so this establishment is more for them as well. Six years earlier, I lost my grandmother whom I met and connected so much with since childhood, and I really wish she could've seen all my accomplishments coming into the light from his brightest grandson doing these ambitious works at just the age of 20. I am grateful to my parents for believing in the cause behind my daily work, and I just want to continue where I left off, going into this fiscal year with my fellow business partners. Many can say that the established business company is based on a personal story from me, which it is, but my focus is directly aimed at bringing the hopeless back into the social spheres of positivity and strong influence back on their communities, regardless of creed and background. Inflation rates are hitting double digits, the global crisis is still looming, and more people are getting behind on their financial trajectory goals, and these are the signs of concerns the company aims to rectify as much as possible for many people with a consistent flowing system. I look forward to a great FY2022 with my business partners in all departments, and there's no question about the potential behind this establishment. Grateful to make this happen as the young key player. Who else is ready to be the next LEGACY MAKER? It's not a question, but rather an urgent call of action one must respond to for a life change."

Past Lessons and Key Takeaways from This Business Launch:

One and a half years ago, in August 2020, Mo Khan released his first-ever home studio music album project titled in the similar name as this company as a way to escape the boredom from lockdown during the COVID-19 Pandemic and help his friends get through the rough times of school, work, and business at the time on multiple music platforms. The crazy part that Mo Khan highlights are how he just transformed that once-music project into an existing business company that any business or community leader can represent and/or be part of within just a year as a living testament to building the legacy of the collective that can win as many hearts as possible. He continues, "If you believe in something, even if nobody does, and want to turn it into a reality, you are not just creating an establishment, but a living source of hope for renewal and prosperity." From a music album project to an established business company: it surely is a remarkable turn-around, indeed.

Current business projects for the company's first fiscal year include earning an additional $1 million through proprietary trading firms with American-based as well as international professional trading partners for long-term profit scaling. Mo Khan is currently working with his new fellow business partners, Emmanuel Jigba Jr. (28) and Hinga Jigba (22), to achieve that ambitious goal, within the next five to eight months. Moreover, the company aims to assist at least 1,000 individuals and families with financial services ranging from tax preparation to helping fellow business owners start up their own businesses into the official status and many others through partnerships with Parrott & Associates LLC. On top of it, Mo Khan aims to expand regular exemplary leadership by executing digital commerce the right way: by implementing crypto purchasing and investing in the business model and helping others do the same both as clients and merchants on a frequent basis.

The company aims at bringing 5,000 NFT (non-fungible token) collections into the marketplace for the long-term project launch into the sphere through collaborations and sharing means with other crucial partners to fulfill great long-term investment promises for buyers and sellers, thus making the digital asset space an interesting sector for everyone to be part of this year. Space commerce is the last thing on the list for the company to tackle on and build for this fiscal year, as partnerships and plans on proceeding to the plan are still in debate, yet it remains to be a critical part of the company's operations for the next 40 years, by the year 2061.

The four main things that Mo Khan emphasizes that are essential when someone is looking into improving their finances and getting into business are income diversification, proper psychology, exemplary planning, and executing goals. When it comes to diversifying streams of income, Mo recommends that if they are working to enter into investing and trading, then they need to acknowledge that losses are a must to be part of this game and have income flowing from other streams, during stints of losses, eliminates a bit of stress from their minds. Having multiple streams of income definitely helps tremendously because it keeps many folks productive and ready to win and come back on another day, so Mo Khan strongly recommends everyone to do these things to their fullest.

When it comes to tackling business, Mo teaches his fellow traders not to do revenge trading after trading losses and sets up trading plans for success by knowing how much to make from executed trades and when to stop trading each day. Mo owes his success and planning greatly to proper psychology and mindset training as it allows him to recognize the difference between those that are ready to deliver and get the results they desire and those that are not. As a result, he will only work with those that are serious and ready to work for their own results in the long run, not just celebrate his or the company's successes on the sidelines as spectators.

Anybody wants to live a free life and not have to worry about being short on money or other issues in his or her life, of course. Yet, who has strong knowledge on one or multiple topics, but not necessarily the chance or the drive to apply them? Mo Khan responds to this serious matter with the following answer, "It is just scary to me how certain people know so much about something, but they never got the chance to apply it at a large scale because of whatever reason it may be. That's really sad and disappointing, so I would like to see my fellow business leaders not overlook the talent of any person at any age, and just give them a chance to apply what they know because that can be just the next thing that can ignite the momentum they may be looking for."

Mo Khan's long-term vision is to combine every sector(s) the company will be involved in for the next forty years and so forth to prepare for space expeditions and lead new lives there through digital asset acquisitions in business leadership. In other words, Mo Khan aims to promote doing business in outer space as an ordinary thing to perform one day through activities he and his business partners are presently doing. He definitely wants to be involved in helping youth and veterans to get started with business as well as teach them more about digital assets and financial literacy, so they would not have to live another day and wonder about their financial futures as much.
