

Cherish Emotional Awareness at Its Best with Jay L's Brand-New Music Video 'Out of this World'

The psychic presentation of an international issue by Jay L in the music video "Out of this World" has amazed everyone. The music video has gone viral on YouTube

Nashville, Jul 11, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - There are only a handful of artists who are renowned for portraying emotions and messages through their musical productions. Highlighting the particular phenomenon with the issue of deportation, Jay L has released the all-new music video, "Out of this World," which has gathered more than 78.5k views on YouTube within 2 weeks of its release. The music video has been embraced by the listeners online with a very heavy heart, as the amazing video choreography done by the artist has not gone unnoticed. The initial part of the music video starts in an office where a couple is seen to be willing to adopt two children, and they are not allowed to do so. The next scene on the screen focuses on the artist starting to sing the song, followed by visuals where some people are caught by officials while illegally entering the United States.

Throughout the entire music video, the soothing voice from the artist in the background combined with the heart-touching lyrics conveys the real story that the artist wants to display. It has to be said that productions that carry a sheer significance like this are quite rare nowadays in the professional music world. The self-motivated artist is looking to join the independent music label 'The Blessed Brothers Entertainment' soon. The artist has amazed the entire global music community with the first music video from his discography. The artist is on a mission to spread awareness about the deportation of people to Haiti, especially children who have no one to support or care about them.

Inspired by Brian McKnight, Jay L has started to produce music videos that can match the feelings of many who are in trouble. The artist's courageous approach and confident personality have made people fall in love with him. The humble-hearted artist is currently working on several projects that will be dropping later this year. With the newly launched music video "Out of this World," the artist is destined to reach newer heights in his career. Viewers across the world can watch the music video by the artist on YouTube.
