He has a keen interest in neuromodulation through the use of spinal cord stimulation to address patient pain. He also understands pain can be both a physical and emotional experience that is unique to each patient and works diligently to understand the underlying cause and develop a treatment plan tailored for each patient.

Anesthesiology is the medical specialty concerned with the total perioperative care of patients before, during, and after surgery. It encompasses anesthesia, intensive care medicine, critical emergency medicine, and pain medicine. Anesthesiologists have the primary responsibility of monitoring the patient's vital signs during surgery. In addition to basic measurements such as pulse, blood pressure, and temperature, they measure the patient's respiration.

Pain management is a branch of medicine employing an interdisciplinary approach for easing the suffering and improving the quality of life of those living with chronic pain. A pain management specialist is a doctor who specializes in pain medicine, focusing on the evaluation, treatment, and prevention of pain.

In his spare time, Dr. Saini enjoys spending time with his family, traveling, and playing sports, and is a die-hard Packers fan. One will most likely find him watching the Packers games with his family of "cheeseheads" during the season.
