New York City, New York Nov 7, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - Director Dima White Pishchulin announced the production of a movie about the new wave of Russian emigrants. During the ongoing military conflict in Ukraine, many Russians left Russia to protest against their government's policy and started a war with a neighboring state. The movie's plot is based on several stories of people trying to build a new life. It will be a feature film about people who love their homeland very much but are unable to stay there when a bloody war is going on. Dima Pishchulin says this situation is very reminiscent of the context of 100 years ago, when millions of people who disagreed with the new communist government left Russia for Turkey, settling in Istanbul and other Turkish cities.

The movie will be shot in Russian, Turkish, and English. Famous Russian actors who are now in Turkey and Europe will take part in the filming. Turkish and European actors, as well as a Turkish crew, will also be involved in the filming.

Dima White's team is counting on the support of investors who care about preserving unbiased Russian culture in a period of dominance of political propaganda. In addition, White hopes to get the help of the Turkish Ministry of Culture.

Dima White Pishchulin is a reputed Russian director and producer, known for the series "Crypto Stories", which has received many awards at international festivals over the past year. He directed the movie "Ugodie", presented in 2015 at the Cannes Film Festival, a dozen iconic documentaries such as "Blockchain Island (2018)", music videos, and advertisements for world brands (BMW, Jagermeister, Purina One, and others).
