

Altaira Launches Groundbreaking Guild Membership NFT Mint

Dallas, Texas Feb 14, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - The upcoming MMO game Altaira is truly living up to its mantra of “We do things differently” with not only its real-world events, live-action mini-series, and of course never-before-seen style of gameplay, but also with its upcoming Guild Membership that launches on the blockchain this Thursday, February 16th at 4 PM UTC.

The Altairan Guild membership brings together the four pillars of a gaming company, Something Squared Studios that include not only AAA quality development and an immersive experience with everything they do but also the promotion of asset ownership for gamers and the development of the web3 gaming ecosystem with the introduction of the first true interoperable gaming asset: the Altairan Game Pass.

Partnering with a number of the current leading and up-and-coming web3 games across multiple blockchains, the Altairan Game Pass offers three tiers of value for owners of a Guild Membership that give gamers added incentive to play multiple games within the ecosystem, and the opportunity to use assets not only in their partnered game but in the games of third-party partners.

In addition to the Game Pass, the Guild Membership is also tiered to allow gamers and enthusiasts of all levels a chance to join the guild that is the heartbeat of the MMO game Altaira’s economy, but also provides access to all of Altaira’s astounding opportunities such as VIP access to their upcoming Altairan Light Festival that features an immersive drone light show bringing the rich lore of Altaira to life in the night sky of Utah after a day of quests, jousting, and other immersive entertainment.

The six tiers of the Guild Membership mint range in price and value from the lowest tier that includes access to the Altairan Game Pass, all the way up to tier 6 which gives access to everything in the previous five tiers, as well as once-in-a-lifetime offerings like a cameo in the live-action mini-series and a tribute in-game statue or monolith. As a gaming company, and determined to “do things differently,”

Altaira has also gamified its mint with two of the four kingdoms opening the launch and a variety of contests as well as the other two kingdoms unlocking as tiers are completed.

The founding knights behind Altaira dreamed up everything that they would want in a guild and created that value for their Guild Members to enrich their love of lore and gaming with swag packs, custom daggers, the opportunity to win a custom gaming PC made by Overkill Computers, and of course every guild member having the opportunity to rank up and earn a hand-crafted 14 k gold Guild ring made by the most famous fantasy-fiction jewelry company in the world, Jens Hansen.

With the MMO game of Altaira being built by Something Squared Studios and Kevuru Studios, the gaming studio that worked on Fortnite and Star Wars games, and all of the incredible value these knights of Altaira are accomplishing, producing, and partnering with, the Altairan Guild Membership is set to be a truly never-before-seen highlight of the not only interoperability of web3 games, but of the gaming, entertainment, and technology sectors as a whole.
