Kennedy, legendary Apple founder, Steve Jobs, Victor Hugo (Les Miserables), and General George Custer ("Custer's Last Stand").

“We are pleased to be offering some of the most coveted autographs on the market today”, says Ryan Farlie, CEO of parent company Signaturist-Ink, LLC. “From the original draft pages of Hugo’s masterwork Les Miserables, to one of Kennedy’s final autographs on his legendary ‘Ask Not...’ speech, and more.”

Original Handwritten Manuscript Excerpt from Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables"

An exceedingly scarce and highly valuable piece of literary history is now available for purchase – an original, unsigned handwritten excerpt from Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Miserables." Written on the back of a scrap of the 'La Presse' tabloid, Hugo routinely utilized scraps of newspapers, envelopes, and bits of paper before incorporating them in the final draft. Once complete, he crossed out his drafts with an ink slash through the page to indicate he had used them. This excerpt features two passages from the book of “JEAN VALJEAN”, one of literature's most enduring characters. The only authenticated portion of Hugo's draft of "Les Miserables" in private hands, has been thoroughly reviewed and authenticated by the highly-respected PSA/DNA Authentication Services. Kennedy's immortal, "Ask Not what your country can do for you..." inaugural speech. The magazine is signed by Kennedy himself, just 36 hours before his assassination in Dallas. Included with the magazine is the original White House invitation for the November 20, 1963 dinner, along with a separate invitation to the President's private residence for a short, personal visit with the Kennedys 15 minutes prior to the reception. Exceptionally Scarce "7th [Cavalry]" George Custer Inscribed 1876 CDV

Taken in March of 1876, this is Custer's second-to-last studio portrait ever, and perhaps one of the last photos he ever signed of himself. Among one of his last autographs in any format, the inscription is one of just a handful of autographs in which Custer handwrites his 7th cavalry rank "Lt Col 7th [cavalry]" just three months before he perished at the legendary Battle of Little Big Horn, or “Custer’s Last Stand”. This is the only CDV we could find with a 7th cavalry rank inscription, and this CDV presents an unrivaled rarity in the world of Little Big Horn artifacts. Fully authenticated by Beckett (BAS) Authentication Services. For more information, please visit: <https://tinyurl.com/CusterCDV>
