“The hasty departure of my mother to cancer at a young age, and my own youth, guaranteed my heartbreak. Her last words to me were, ‘When you become the successful doctor that you have been working so diligently to become, I want you to treat every patient with the same passion you have shown me.’ I live to achieve the dream that my mother left for me which has become my dream as well. I find myself fulfilling this dream as I have and continue to treat every patient with the love and passion I felt for my mother” expressed Dr. Al Zoubi.

His acclaimed career in medicine began after he earned his medical degree from the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Kalamoon in Syria in 2012. He then relocated to the United States, performing his residency in internal medicine at Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center and his fellowship in infectious disease and immunology at UMass Memorial Medical Center.

Dedicated to his specialty, Dr. Al Zoubi is board-certified in both infectious disease and internal medicine by the American Board of Internal Medicine (ABIM). The ABIM is a physician-led, non-profit, independent evaluation organization driven by doctors who want to achieve higher standards for better care in a rapidly changing world.

Remaining up to date in his field, Dr. Al Zoubi is an active member of the American Medical Association, the American College of Physicians, and the Infectious Diseases Society of America.

Since 2019, he has been serving as a Clinical Assistant Professor within the Department of Internal Medicine at the University of Illinois College of Medicine Rockford.
