“I believe every patient should be treated like a family member. Getting the diagnosis right is critical, but almost equally important is showing my patients I truly care for their well-being. I want my patients to know that even though unfortunate things can happen to good people, they can trust that I will be there for them when they need me. I feel fortunate to be part of a profession that can offer so much to improve someone’s quality of life. There is no greater professional reward than being the recipient of my patient’s smiles and hugs because of what I was able to do for them. That gratitude is what continues to inspire me to be the best ophthalmologist I can be” expressed the doctor.

After graduating from Cornell University, Dr. Buglisi, Jr. completed his medical education at the Rowan-Virtua School of Osteopathic Medicine in 2003. He then went on to perform his residency training in ophthalmology at MedStar Georgetown University Hospital from 2007-2010.

A member of the American Academy of Ophthalmology, he is board-certified in ophthalmology by the American Osteopathic Boards of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery (AOBOO). The AOBOO is a joint organization that provides board certification to qualified Doctors of Osteopathic Medicine (DOs) who specialize in the medical and surgical treatment of the eye (ophthalmologists) and to qualified DOs who specialize in the medical and surgical treatment of the ears, nose, and throat (otolaryngologists).

During his career, Dr. Buglisi, Jr. has worked in various settings including military bases, inner cities, and rural communities. He served in the US Navy as an ophthalmologist, which included 7 months in Iraq.
