

People flock from all over Australia to the Off-Grid Living Festival

Education and entertainment combine to make sustainability fun for all.

Wangaratta, Victoria Mar 29, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - With energy bills on the rise, an unstable economy, and the climate crisis now at the forefront of the media everyday people are seeking out a new and better way to live. Going off-grid, future-proofing, self-sufficiency, and being sustainable used to be 'alternative' phases, but are now become part of the everyday vernacular. With the fifth Off-Grid Living Festival just around the corner, people are getting excited about this great opportunity to find practical solutions, and products and learn new skills to help achieve this dream lifestyle.

Held in the foothills of Victoria's Alpine ranges, the township of Eldorado explodes into a hub of sustainable activity for one weekend as the event attracts thousands of people from all over the country. With some travelling from as far as Western Australia and Darwin, it's easy to see just how sort-after these topics are. The event covers everything off-grid from the latest energy and transport technologies for people who are interested in high-tech solutions, to back-to-basics skills for those looking to live a low-impact life of simplicity.

One of the unique aspects of this festival is its ability to bring together the best from the past, present, and even a glimpse into the future. With no pre-defined expectation of what 'off-grid living' must be, the event makes people feel welcome to approach these topics from any point of view. At this event people don't just talk about the problems, they offer practical and achievable solutions in many formats.

This is an interactive weekend with 5 talk stages, workshops, and live demonstrations happening everywhere, 200 friendly exhibitors that are open to chatting about their products, lifestyles, and skills, and plenty of great food and entertainment for the whole family to enjoy.

By combining education and entertainment this event appeals to people from all walks of life and empowers them to take their energy needs into their own hands, transition to sustainable lifestyles, build self-sufficiency skills and get off the grid.
