

City University of New York Student Takes Her Career into Her Own Hands with Launch of Field To City

Ashley Peterson, a hospitality student of City University of New York, knows that anything is possible when you put your mind to it.

New York City, New York May 2, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - As Ashley Peterson, a hospitality student at the City University of New York, found herself frustrated with the job hunt, she decided to take her career into her own hands. The Virginia native has always been passionate about Hospitality, especially unique food and beverage offerings, and has been inspired by the cultural mecca that is the big apple.

To honor her call to hospitality and to remind anyone, from anywhere, that they can find their way in the big apple, Ashley is launching Field to City.

Field to City is an online destination that celebrates Ashley's journey from Field to City, retelling her story through recipes, restaurant and food reviews, travel posts, and more. Through Field to City, Ashley is taking her readers along with her as she discovers and showcases the delicious culinary culture of New York City.

“My vision for Field to City is to pay homage to the hidden gems of the food and beverage industry,” said Ashley. “In today’s digital world, it’s so easy to get lost in the sea of endless options, but I want to celebrate the stories of hardworking people and foster a creative, inclusive environment.”

Field to City is a reminder that anyone, from anywhere, can find their way in the big apple. For Ashley, this project is a chance to share her voice, her stories, and her journey.
