The song "Let There Be Light" is written by composer Andreas Sandlund who has been involved in many productions and album releases through the years. He has also, for example, written music that has resulted in placements on TV series and shows on major channels around the world.

Finally a few words about the song:

The song conveys a message that is quite timely. It is a song about peace, for a world very much in need of it. Sometimes, when we see wars raging and conflicts occurring we can feel helpless, and ask ourselves what could we possibly do. But the song urges us to encourage one another to feel hope, that our lives can make a difference. Sometimes a small kindness or something said or done can have an impact greater than we know. As the song says "But even the smallest flame can bring light in the darkest night. It might start right where we are, igniting a spark to spread afar".
