FACTUALITY®

A CRASH COURSE ON STRUCTURAL INEQUALITY

Washington, D.C, District of Columbia Jan 16, 2024 (IssueWire.com) - In a remarkable journey that began with the vision to navigate around conventional DEI programming challenges, Factuality has emerged as a global force in promoting social equity and fostering crucial dialogues. Factuality's interactive approach resonates with diverse and sometimes divided audiences and has also garnered recognition from esteemed entities such as Google, Nike, Fox, Princeton, and the federal government.

"I always knew that I had to identify a way to circumvent conventional DEI programming pushback and develop a social equity experience that resonated with and appealed to diverse audiences. I never imagined that Factuality would reach tens of thousands of people across the globe," says Natalie Gillard, the visionary behind Factuality.

Over the past eight years, Factuality has become a catalyst for change, reaching diverse communities and unlocking new dimensions of impact. Its wildly unconventional approach to engaging groups in difficult dialogue has led to countless standing ovations and praise from past program participants. The program's success lies not just in its capacity to simulate fact-based inequities delicately, but also in its proven ability to reshape perspectives within minutes.

"For nearly a decade, Factuality has assisted communities in unlocking new dimensions of impact, fostering empathy, social competence, and self-awareness," adds Gillard. "Its transformative power lies not only in its capacity to simulate fact-based inequities but in its proven capacity to reshape perspectives, within minutes, and pave the way for a socially just future."

As Factuality marks eight years of social impact, it stands as a testament to the commitment to creating positive change and promoting an equitable future. The celebration is not just about the years gone by but also about the countless lives touched and perspectives transformed around the globe.
